Out his own party, has caused consternation in the Greenbacker to swallow.

The duplicity and hypoerisy of Smith have allienated many of his calculed followers. In conversation with a promitten Greenbacker to day he did not even apologize for the conduct of Smith. They fully realize the situation described by the boy who wrote to his fitter, "Come West, father, for mignty mean men get office out here."

The Republicans present the National issues and the mistakes of the late Congress with every and force, while their opponents fight shy of those issues and confine themselves to local and State questions, and do not dars to meet National issues.

How Massachusetts Elections are Conducted BOSTON, Aug. 15 .- Mr. Platt made his first appearance here with the Wallace Investigat ing Committee this morning, when it resumed

The witness who was first called was George G. Crocker, chairman of the Young Republican Committee. He said that in the campaign of 1878 he was a secretary of the Republican State Committee. Of forty members of the committee eight resided in Boston and five in Worcester. He did not think any of the money used in conducting the campaign came from Federal officials. As he did not receive the money he could not say whether such contributions were made or not. Crocker submitted his books for inspection. The famous circular to influential citizons, commonly called the "clergymen's circular," issued last fall, was read by Mr. Wallace to his colleague. Crocker said the "clergymen's circular" was distributed to some 200 persons in various cities and towns. He did not know, had never heard that Thayer conferred with the manufacturers in any town or city in the State about controlling their voters or the votes of their employees.

Mr. Blair asked Crocker about a circular read at the Fancuil Hall meeting which created such a sensation at the time. The witness re-plied that the first he had heard of it was when it was in General Butler's hands and when attemption to make capital of it. He did not believe that the document had been circulated in any part of the State; he had been unable to obtain a copy, although he had striven hard to do so; knew of no improper use of the money of his committee during the campaign. money of his committee during the campaign. He knew of no direct attempt to influence voters by paying money, but he thought that there were more than ten thousand voters in Boston who can be and probably are influenced in the manner which he had described; had heard no complaint against the manner in which Federal officers had performed their duty; there were, perhaps, one or two thousand Republicans in the city who could be influenced by low means, but such measures had not been resorted to; there had been but limited attention to the payment of taxes by his committee, but the payment of taxes by his committee, but the town committees had been instructed to see that those who were otherwise entitled to vote were qualified in this respect. The State compared favorably with others in the purity of its elections. The peculiar form in which the Republican tickets appeared but fall was adopted to recent seem appeared last fall was adopted to prevent coun-terfeiting, in which the Democratic politicians are adepts, but of which Republicans are not guilty. He explained the trick by which the names of two Congressional candidates ap-peared on the same ticket in such a manner that they did not attract attention, yet ren-dered the vote worthless. About the payment of poll-taxes he said he did not think it was wrong that poor voters should be assisted in voting in accordance with their convictions, but he thought the practice of having their capitation tax paid by committees and candidates could easily be abused, and that therefore it is pernicious. Had known of no attempt to corree voters either directly or indirectly.

Mr. Wallace resumed his queries about the circulars, and Mr. Crocker replied that he could not tell exactly how many were issued. I did not know the "Fancuil Hall circular" to manufacturers was not issued and suppressed, but did know that the Republican State Central Committee neither issued nor suppressed it. Of the so-called "manufacturers" meeting at the Parker House he had no revene meeting" at the Parker House he had no per sonal knowledge, but supposed it was beld to discuss and consider the cam-paign. Knew of no money being raised at that conference, and knew of no other meeting of a similar character. Mr. Wallace's question whether money was or was not potential in elections in Massachusetts was objected to by Messrs. Blair and Platt, and he did not press it. Mr. Crocker said both parties used moral suasion in influencing voers, and that promises were also employed the registration tax on voters he considered had resulted in bribery and corruption, which might have been prevented by wiser and better laws: knew of no interference by custom se or post-office officials in the late election ers' circular" was written or issued by any Adin Thayer followed Crocker, and said he was last year chairman of the Republican State Committee and was present at the manufac turers' meeting at the Parker House in Octo ber; that meeting was convened for advice. like hundreds of others were during the cam paign; no members of the State Committee were present; there was no need of money at that time but it was deemed necessary to stithat time, but it was deemed accessary to sir-the people up; there was no effort to raise money or influence employers of labor. I said at that meeting that the campaign was not a partisan one; that it was against the worst of demagogues; there was no suggestion what-ever that workmen should be coerced in any way, nor was there any private consultation about the subsequent management of the campaign. Scarcely a meeting of ours was held last fall which was not disturbed by Kearney's and Butler's followers, and one of the objects of the meeting was to bring this fact promincully forward and rouse the people to a sense of their danger. Mr. Thayer denied all knowledge of the "manufacturers circular," and declared that no federal officer interfered either by influence or money in the election. He said the committee spent over $25,000 in the campaign that it had all the money needed; that the custom-house and post-office patronage was not used to influence the election; knew of no attempts to corree em-ployees; had attended several meetings during the campaign; nothing was said about influencing employees to vote against Butler but it was urged that every honorable means should be used to induce men to cast their ballots against him. Had no communication during the campaign with Mr. Gorham, secretary of the Republican National Committee, nor with Mr. Hale, except to invite him to speak. Had no knowledge of any contribu-tions from the treasury of the National Com-mittee. The money used was raised by voluntary contributions. The campaign wholly honest and above-board.

THE CAMPAIGN IN MAINE.

The Political Situation and Prospects There PORTLAND, ME., August 14, 1879.

To the Editor of the National Republican: SIR: The great political battle being fought in Maine is of great importance, and engages the States. attention of the Republican party all over the country. The loss of the State last year to the Republican party and the election of two of the Republican party and the election of two of the meanest Democrats that disgrace the present Congress was a surprise to the whole Nation.

In the nomination of Daniel F. Davis for Gevernor, the Republicans have a popular man and a candidate their opponents can say nothing against. The present Governor, Dr. Garcelou, has been re-nominated by the Democrate who have eighnally abandoned him and Senator Blaine is not only speaking every day, but managing the campaign with masterly skill. He is now chairman of the State Republican Committee, and has filled that position for twenty years. All the Republican members of Congress in the State are on the stump, with quite a number of speakers aiding them from other States. LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 15 .- In the case of the Long Branch commissioners against the Lelands of the Ocean Hotel, for an alleged violation of the excise law on the pavilion at the Ocean pier, a further hearing was set down before Police Justice Lane this morning. When the court opened, Robert Allen, of Red Bank, counsel for the Lelands, served on the court a certiorari from the Supreme Court of the State remanding all the proceedings to that court at its next term. This action disposes of all the liquor cases at Long Branch for the season, so far as the commissioners are concerned. The sale of beer and liquor continues.

RIOTING IN QUEBEC.

Collision of Catholic and Protestant Laborers.

Procession of French Canadians—Their Passage Resisted by Irish Catholics-Severo Fighting - Several Persons Killed-The City In the Hands of the Mob-Military Under Arms, &c.

Fight of Religious Factions. QUEREC, Aug. 15. - The ship laborers' trouble culminated to-day in a terrible free, fight in the lower town, in Champlain street near Allan, Rac & Co.'s wharf. No. 5 section of the society had secoded from the parent society because they considered they had not been properly treated, and had formed an independent society, composed almost exclusively of French Canalians. This morning the latter society walked in procession through the streets in order to show their numerical strength, but when on their way to the cove they were set upon by a large number of mem-bers of the parent society, who opposed their further passage. There were about three thousand men on the French Canadian side. and not so many on the other side, which was composed principally of Irish Catholics. Shots from revolvers and blows were freely ex-changed, to the injury of agreat number in the crowd. The French Cauadians were finally driven back, having lost, according to report, five killed, though two dead is nearer the fig-ure, and several wounded. The mayor did not allow the relies is interfere. ure, and several wounded. The mayor did not allow the police to interfere, as he has but a limited force of about forty men at his command. At the present moment (12:30) a fight is said to be raging at the Cove, and some of the police and a magistrate have gone to investigate. Knots of men are congregated all along Champlain street, talking over the creuts of the morning. They express themselves determined to keep the Union-Canadian men out of the street, and have two cannons in position at Kincheller's wharf and one at Martin's. They are all armed with revolvers, bont books and axes, but are quiet and respectful when addressed. Here and there on the sidewalks marks of blood show where some une has been wounded. Before being repulsed at Allan's, the No. 5 men were warned by Chief Trudel, of the water police, against advancing forther, but instead of his advice being accepted he was set upon and narrowly being accepted he was set upon and narrowly escaped a heating. About five minutes later they were in hot retreat, turning at times to fire upon their adversaries. How it happened that more were not killed is a marvel to every one, but so far only one death has ben reported—that of a man named Pierre Groux, apparently about thirty was of the property of the control of the contro apparently about thirty years of age, whose body has been taken to the water-police sta-tion. About a dezen men are known to have tion. About a dezen men are known to have been wounded seriously by revolver bullets, principally in the neck and head. One man had the whole of his upper lip carried away by a ball. The processionists then went around and by the steps to Captain Blanc, where the houses inhabited by Irish were sucked. The hard ware stores have been entered by the mob and arms taken. Andrews' store, in Fabrique street, was entered by fifteen men, who took six or nine guns therefrom, and left without creating any further disturbance. All shops in the lower town and on Mountain Hill have their shutters up. It is not probable that anything further will transpire Mountain Hill have their shutters up. It is not probable that anything further will transpire until night comes on, when trouble is feared. The utmost determination is expressed in Champlain street not to allow the Canadians to enter, as they assert they are bent on bloodshed and robbery. It has been remarked that there were not fifty ship laborers in the whole line of procession this morning. The difficulty has now assumed the appearance of a war of races, and where it will stop is a matter of races, and where it will stop is a matter of

A meeting of French Canadians was held in the Jacques Cartier Market Hall this afterthe plains, where they and their friends assembled in large numbers. When they were able to muster 1,800 men, armed with rifles, shot-guns, revolvers and other arms, a rush was made for the city, and the principal streets of the St. Louis suburbs were profused by the meb, which rushed through them firing shots and howling most discordantly. It is no known that any one was hurt. The Irishmer of the Coves are said to be in motion now, and the crowd is dispersing. The Volunteers will be ordered out, and bloody work may be expeeted before morning.

THE MILITARY UNDER ARMS. QUEDEC, Aug. 15,-The utmost excitement still reigns over the rioting, and a large meet-ing has been held at St. Roche's, but what transpired has not yet been made public. The military force of the city is under arms, and different battalions are bivouscked for the night at the drill-shed and the rink. The acting magistrate has been furnished with a

SOMEBODY TO BLAME.

Responsibility for the Atlantic City Railroad Disaster. PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 15,-The coroner's inquest on the bodies of the five men killed by esterday's collision at Clementon, on the Philadelphia and Atlantic City marrowguage rallway, was held in Camden to-day, The principal witnesses examined were the conductor and engineer of the freight train, S. Verts, assistant superintendent of the oad, and Mr. Eilis Clark, general superintondent. The evolence showed that the run-ning of the trains simply amounted to guess-work; that the assistant superintendent, as a rule, gave his messages to the telegraph operator at Camden verbally, and that the onductor swore he knew nothing about run-ing trains, and had charge of one for the first time on the day of the accident. The jury renared the following verdict: "We eccased came to their deaths in co deceased came to their deaths in consequence of a collision about 2:5e p. m., August 14, about 150 yards below Clementon station, on the Philadelphia and Atlantic City rallroad, and are of the opinion that J. S. Verts, assistant superintendent, is criminally answerable for miploying the impotent persons to maining he trains and for negligence of duty."
